

GREENWOOD BAMBOO FLOORING >>

Unlike hardwood floors that come from slow growing trees, bamboo flooring is produced from an extremely fast growing grass. Bamboo is the fastest growing plant on Earth; growing one third faster than the fastest growing tree. Some bamboo species can grow 24 inches per day and, within 90 days, reach 60 to 90 feet in height. When harvested, the bamboo root system merely sprouts a new shoot the following rainy season; no re-planting is necessary. In addition, unlike traditional hardwoods that are harvested every 40 to 60 years, bamboo can be harvested every 4 to 8 years. During the manufacturing process, almost 100 % of the bamboo is utilized. The material that is too small or weak for flooring production is used for many diverse products such as furniture, paper, chopsticks and toothpicks.
